7 Marco Antonio Caballero-Perez,

Order Denying Motion to Vacate Sentence

[ECF No. 155]

10 Marco Antonio Caballero-Perez moves to vacate his sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. He 11 contends that his counsel was constitutionally ineffective because (1) he failed to request a speedy 12 trial, (2) he failed to provide Caballero-Perez with discovery materials; (3) he failed to provide a 13 Spanish interpreter; and (4) he failed to arrange for the probation officer to interview
14 Caballero-Perez, which resulted in the presentence investigation report being inaccurate.

15 There is no merit to any of these arguments. Caballero-Perez has not shown that his counsel 16 was ineffective. And even if he had, he has not shown that anything his counsel did prejudiced him.
17 I thus deny his motion.

18 Discussion

19 To prevail on a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, a defendant must show both 20 deficient performance and prejudice.¹ I “must apply a strong presumption that counsel’s 21 representation was within the wide range of reasonable professional assistance,” and a defendant 22 must show that “counsel made errors so serious that counsel was not functioning as the counsel
23 guaranteed the defendant by the Sixth Amendment.”² “[T]he standard for judging counsel’s 24 representation is a most deferential one” because “the attorney observed the relevant proceedings, 25 knew of materials outside the record, and interacted with the client, with opposing counsel, and with

1 the judge.”³ “A reasonable tactical choice based on an adequate inquiry is immune from attack.”⁴

2 All of Caballero-Perez’s arguments fail on both the performance and prejudice prong: he has 3 not shown that his counsel was deficient, and he has not shown that any deficiency prejudiced his 4 case.⁵

5 A. Failing to request a speedier trial

6 Defendants have a right to a speedy trial.⁶ In deciding whether a defendant’s trial has been 7 unduly delayed, I consider the “[l]ength of delay, the reason for the delay, the defendant’s assertion 8 of his right, and prejudice.”⁷

9 First, Caballero-Perez experienced little delay before his trial. He was indicted in November 10 2013 and his trial began a little under five months later. Second, the reason for the delay was mostly 11 his own doing: he requested multiple continuances.⁸ Finally, Caballero-Perez provides no evidence
12 that he was prejudiced by this modest delay. Counsel was thus not ineffective for failing to make a 13 speedy trial challenge.

14 B. Failing to provide discovery materials

15 Caballero-Perez next alleges that his counsel failed to share discovery materials from the case
16 with him. But he offers no evidence to support this contention. He does not explain what materials 17 were withheld, or how not having these materials prejudiced him. I thus cannot determine that his

22 ⁵ Caballero-Perez mentions one other ineffective-assistance argument. He says that his counsel 23 failed to give him “a copy of a juror’s admittance that she had leaked defendant’s information during 24 trial to her husband of defendant’s priors in the deliberation room.” ECF No. 155 at 4. But there is 25 no evidence that this document exists. And even if it did, Caballero-Perez does not explain how not having this document prejudiced him.

1 counsel was ineffective for failing to provide him with anything.

2 C. Failing to provide an interpreter

3 Caballero-Perez claims that the lack of an interpreter for meetings with his counsel prevented
4 him from knowing “what did happen during and after trial, or during and after the appeal.”⁹

5 But he knew what happened: a court-appointed interpreter was there for all of his court appearances,
6 and the relevant documents were translated for him.¹⁰ And once again, he fails to explain how not 7 having an interpreter prejudiced him. He does not suggest, for example, that had he known about 8 some information earlier, he would have raised a different argument to the court.

9 D. Failing to request an interview with the probation officer

10 Caballero-Perez finally claims that his counsel prevented him from interviewing with the 11 probation officer who prepared his presentencing investigation report, which, in turn, prevented the 12 court from getting an accurate report. Even if his counsel failed to arrange an interview for him, 13 Caballero-Perez does not identify anything inaccurate in his report or how he was prejudiced in any 14 way by the report.

15 D. There are no grounds for a certificate of appealability.

16 To appeal this order, Caballero-Perez must receive a certificate of appealability from a circuit
17 or district judge.¹¹ To obtain this certificate, he “must make a substantial showing of the denial of a 18 constitutional right, a demonstration that . . . includes showing that reasonable jurists could debate 19 whether (or, for that matter, agree that) the petition should have been resolved in a different manner 20 or that the issues presented were adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed further.”¹² Given

1 that Caballero-Perez has provided no explanation, much less evidence, demonstrating that anything
2 his counsel did could have prejudiced him, I deny his request for a certificate of appealability.

3 Conclusion

4 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that the 5 defendant's motion to vacate [ECF No. 155] is DENIED.

6 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED a certificate of appealability is GRANTED.
